

THOROUGH PROBE TO BE MADE INTO KILLING OF BOY

Inquest Is Begun and Will Be Resumed Tuesday; Mayor
Says Committee of Council
Will Investigate.

The accident which caused the death of 6-year-old Owen Morris, son of Thomas M. Morris, will be thoroughly investigated. The inquest was started yesterday by Justice George H. Craig and will be continued Tuesday morning.

Mayor Boatright stated that the committee of the council would hold an independent investigation. This will be held as much in justice to W. J. Reed, driver of the motor, engine and the city as for any other purpose.

A coroner's jury was empaneled yesterday morning. Members of the jury were selected with care owing to the peculiar nature of the case.

The jury was taken to Thomas Blake's undertaking rooms on East central avenue and there viewed the body of the child.

Funeral to Be Held Today.

From the undertaking rooms the jury went to the central fire station, where the highlands motor was being repaired, and examined the machine. Next, the jury went to the Morris home and carefully looked over the place where the accident occurred.

Adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, when the taking of testimony of witnesses will be commenced. The long interim was allowed because of the funeral of Judge Mann, which is to be held tomorrow.

The funeral of the boy will be held today. Services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Central avenue Methodist Episcopal church, the Rev. Ellis Smith and the Rev. George H. Givan officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery, George H. Givan, J. F. Simms, Hiram Hancock and O. E. Ayer will be pallbearers.

SHORT AND UGLY WORD COMES NEAR TO BEING USED

Plenty of Pep Injected Into Discussion Over Certification of Teachers; Plea Made for University.

A strong plea for recognition of university graduates in certification of teachers was made yesterday afternoon before the educational council by Dr. Mitchell in place of Dr. David R. Boyd. The discussion which ensued showed that there had been a lack of "meeting of the minds," rather than a disposition not to give university graduates the certification asked for them by Dr. Boyd, and for a moment it seemed as if the short, ugly word would be passed.

W. T. Conway, of Baton, led off with a discussion of the proposed system of certification, which had been placed in related form on every desk. He criticized the main features, and came to the conclusion that after all "it is the spirit of the boy and the girl that counts and certification does not give that spirit." He was pleased that the law has practically eliminated the three-year professional certificate.

Circumscribed by Law.

J. L. G. Swinney, of Aztec, a member of the state board of education, explained that the board is very much circumscribed by the law. He was too pleased to see the three-year professional certificate disappear. He likes the old Kansas plan of insisting upon experience before granting a first-grade certificate and would prefer to have seven months' experience as one requirement for second-grade certificate, and fourteen months for first grade.

"In demanding efficiency in service, I am protecting the children, the people, the educational system of the state," he exclaimed. "It is better to eliminate the candidate who has no natural bent for teaching before he gets hold of a certificate guaranteeing to the people that he is fit to teach. He deceived the proposed plan of certification to be too indefinite, and deplored the lack of unity among the educational forces of the state. Legislators have told me again and again that the teachers do not themselves know what they want."

R. L. Enloe, of Silver City, also declared that the law itself practically prescribes who shall be entitled to teach and who shall not. Cities have the right to issue their own certificates. These are granted on two theories: "Credits and examination," and there are two classes of teachers, the self-made and the institution-made. The state board may fix percentages and add subjects required and the tendency is constantly upward toward stricter requirements.

There is considerable misunderstanding among teachers and school directors about certification and the system should be clear, simple and explicit. The state board of education does not resent suggestions from the outside, in fact, welcomes them on this subject. He favored special certificates for special subjects.

Dr. Boyd dwelt upon the demand by high schools for college-bred teachers, for teachers specially trained in a special subject, for teachers that have the breadth of culture that a college course implies. He complained that the state board had not yet recognized that special demand.

Dr. Mitchell presented cogently and scientifically the policy in other states in granting certificates to college graduates without examination. He outlined on the blackboard the requirements in various states as to the amount of instruction in education and psychology to be given the pupil preparing to teach a special subject, and asked that university graduates thus prepared should be given at least one year's certificate without examination, to be renewed in case the graduate made good.

Prof. T. G. Rogers, of East Las Vegas, deplored that the university graduate of intelligence and mature thought should be placed on the same plane as to certification with a high school girl in short dresses. Surely, four years of a university course fit a pupil far better to teach than eight weeks of professional training in even as good a school as the Normal university. The proposed scheme of certification flatters our high schools but the requirements for second and first grade certificates should be made much stiffer.

Wants Teachers to Grow.

R. F. Asplund explained that the system of certification in vogue developed much as did the school laws, it just grew and now the time has come to do as was done with the laws—to compile and harmonize. He advocated one system instead of two, so that the higher grade can always be built upon a lower. At present and under the proposed system, when a teacher has obtained a first-grade certificate he is through and if he desires a professional certificate, he must start all over again. "I do not see much sense in granting life certificates. Teachers have a way of deteriorating unless they are kept on their mental feet. I would have them produce evidence of mental growth every once in a while. However, examinations are the bane of school life, they are wasteful of effort and of gray matter. I would have the evidence of cultural improvement consist in reading certain books or securing institutional credits. He was earnest in insisting that New Mexico teachers should be required to study New Mexico classics and history. The teachers have great influence in determining the attitude of the future citizen toward the state.

Here Dr. Boyd again made the demand that university graduates be given the same footing as a high school graduate. "Every city high school insists on college graduates to teach special courses. If it does not, I would like to know it."

W. T. Conway said that an employer, the high school will not employ any teacher who does not have an A. B. or A. M. degree, and have prepared to teach a special subject.

Enloe explained the preference given high school graduates by the fact that first-class teachers are paid only $75 a month in many instances and that New Mexico would lose the services of many of its high school graduates if certification were denied them.

W. O. Hall commended Asplund's idea of building up higher grade requirements logically and in sequence from the lower grades. He agreed that a university graduate should have a higher kind of certificate than the high school graduate. The same idea was taken by Prof. J. B. Clifton and Professor MacKay of Socorro.
